EST. 1841. PUBLISHED WEEKLY.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 12, 1886.

No notice apparently is going to be taken by the authorities of the disgraceful state of affairs in the Reformatory School. The editor of the Bulletin did a most ungrateful task in the most graceful manner when he exposed the rottenness of the institution. We thoroughly appreciate how hard it must have been for him to do what he did. The condition of affairs was then fairly exposed, no answer has appeared, therefore the charge was evidently correct. Now, what are the Government going to do about it? Are we going to have these young thieves tricked out and feasted on every public occasion, or are we going to have the institution managed as a deterrent to crime. As it is now run it is an incentive to crime: for a boy if he is only bad enough can get free quarters there and a chief position in all that is going on. As a fact we have known of natives who have desired to "get their children into the Reformatory School!" Think of it. How low moral sense is here can be judged from such an anecdote.

CERTAINLY it is high time that the prison gang working on the Waikiki road should be looked after. A week or so ago, in broad daylight, they committed what was practically a highway robbery on a Chinaman, and aggravated the offence by personal violence in tying the man up to a fence. That it was "only a Chinaman," had little to do with the matter, it showed that these rascals cared neither for law nor punishment, as punishments are in this country. On Friday came another instance of their behavior. The Waikiki omnibus was overturned, in consequence, it is stated, of one of the prisoners either wilfully or carelessly backing his cart into the horses of the omnibus. Late in the afternoon a prisoner made the threat that he would serve another bus driver as he had done the first one. Four people in the omnibus narrowly escaped broken limbs or even death. Of the occupants, two were Chinese, the others were Mrs. T. Rain Walker, wife of the British Vice Consul and her son. Some notice should be taken of the affair, and the prison authorities should put a reliable man to presence discipline among the prisoners employed on the roads.

The Kinan has brought many protests against raising the taxes. The people on the other islands are always more keenly alive to such matters than the people of Honolulu. Men who work early and late and who find it a hard struggle to gain a living by the chances of crops, are not disposed to tamely suffer that their hard earned gains should be wrung from them to satisfy the voracious maws of alien adventurers who have never done a hand's turn to advance the country. From what is learned from the country districts, it would be better for the Cabinet to pause in its career of folly, a bow may be bent too far, and even so astute a politician as the Minister of Interior may overshoot the mark. Our people have been long suffering under such a scandalous rule as the present Ministry have given us, but they are touched now in a vital point and they begin to talk strongly. Things in Hawaii are not as comfortable as they should be and there is only this precious set of vampires to thank for it. Hawaii might have been a model kingdom. Put such a scamp as the Minister of Interior in power and can it be wondered at that Hawaii has long ceased to be a model kingdom and is floating rapidly into such a state as some of the Central American Republics, the legitimate prey for any clever adventurer that comes along. Surely the Hawaiians as a nation wish for better than this.

The news from Europe is decidedly warlike. The speech of Monsieur Tisza, the Prime Minister of the Hungarian Parliament, delivered on September 20th, was a very important one and thoroughly defined the position of Austro-Hungary. The Minister said:

"We want independence among Balkan States," he continued, "without having covetous designs toward any of them. No community of interests exist in Balkans. The Austro-German alliance continues guarding the mutual condition of its existence without endangering peace. Austro-Hungary will not allow any single power to make armed interference in Bulgaria. Austro-Hungary honestly intends following this policy during these critical times."

This is strong enough, but looking at other sources of information the cloud appears to be still more threatening. Prince Ignatieff, well known at the Sublime Porte is stated to have said:

"War between Russia and Germany is inevitable. We helped Germany in her wars with Austria and France, and she has repaid us with enmity and secret hostility. We are all as eager for revanche as France."

With such elements in the field it is not difficult, when once the spark is put to the powder, to create a great conflagration. How great the conflagration will be, if ever the torch is applied, may be gathered from the expenses that only four nations, intimately interested, will be put to. The estimate made by an American paper is that Russia, France, Germany and Austria will have to spend among them about $200,000,000 a day. Now none of these nations can stand their proportion of this expenditure for any great length of time. The war, whenever it comes, cannot be of any very long duration.

"Whom the Gods hate they first make mad." It is near enough to the quotation for political purposes, and we have not time to look up the authority. Hawaii has gone clean, stark, raving mad, at least the venal majority of her Legislators has. Can any one who has a spark of sense contemplate an Appropriation Bill of $4,542,477.16 without a smile coming over his face. Where is this money coming from? The income of the country does not warrant any such expenditure. The proposed loan of two millions, is not going to help us; it will only hang another millstone round our necks. The real meaning of this precious bill is this: There are certain necessary expenditures for public works, get them out of the loan if you can. We, the native members, mean to vote the taxes of the country to suit ourselves.

Riot and debauchery are much to our taste, and we intend to have our fling as long as the purse holds out. After it is empty cogne la galere, let the precious ship go on the rocks. A short life and a so-called merry one is what is desired. Does never the fable of the ants and the grasshopper cross some of their minds? The majority of educated natives know it. Does not the story of Marie Antoinette rise in their memories of history? She played at keeping cows at the "Petit Trianon," but her play ended in a most tragic manner.

The Anglo-Saxon has made the wealth of the country: the money that is being voted now is his money, and if he quietly acquiesces in that money being taken from him and wasted, as it is being, why he is a miserable cur, not worthy of being counted as belonging to the race that defied the tyranny of Charles I. or the stern old patriots that fought on Bunker Hill and many another bloody field. The question before our Anglo-Saxon and German community to-day is, are they going to stand it? If they do why they pocket their wrongs more easily than any community of like race have ever pocketed before. Why is not a public meeting called?

The property taxation in this country is a right down humbug. We hear such beautiful arguments from the Government organ that we almost begin to believe they are true; but facts are unfortunately against them. In this issue will be found a letter from the Hon. S. N. Castle, which effectually disposes of the oft used specious argument. The tax on property here is a heavy one, as compared with the United States, for with us the property is assessed at its full value, nay, in some cases far more than its cash value. The figures Mr. Castle uses will carry conviction to the mind of any fair minded reader.

Direct taxes are what we must look forward to. Our indirect taxes are screwed up as high as they can go. Dry goods, medicines, liquors, cigars are all up to what may be called concert pitch, and so are the various licenses for retailing goods. That far from being a lightly taxed community, it is one that is heavily handicapped, is plain enough when we consider the cost of living. It is not freight and insurance which make various articles of luxury and necessity as dear as they are, it is the heavy duty levied on the goods.

The people pay the taxes, they themselves are the fountain from which all money raised for Government springs. It is the undoubted right of all those who contribute to taxation to have their voice listened to. As the House now stands, there is not a member of the Government party who is not helping himself to the public purse and voting his salary out of the Government funds. It is an outrage on common sense for a Legislature representing a population of 80,000 to vote $4,542,477.16. Where is the money to come from? Neither the income nor the loan will suffice to pay for this. We may be sure, moreover, that the follies are going to be paid first, and useful works afterwards. The so-called "revenue" vessel will be bought, the salaries and pensions will be paid, the Genealogy Board will receive its full quota, the army vote will be drawn, and when all these are paid, where will be the money to pay for roads, bridges and other practical improvements? Is there any country on earth that proposes to spend $56 a head for every man, woman and child in its dominions? We know not.

WELL, we have got our army bill, and are promised a most effective force—of officers. Considering the size of the proposed army, we shall do fairly well with a Commander in Chief, two Major Generals, a Quartermaster General, an Intelligence Officer, eight or ten Aids, half a dozen Majors, four or five Colonels, Captains and Lieutenants ad libitum. Truly the two hundred and fifty men ought to be well looked after. We think however, one great mistake has been made. A civilian ought not to be at the head of the department. Our battle scarred warriors, officers of experience in the field, must take it ill that a civilian and an alien should be in the position that His Excellency Robt. Creighton occupies. There is this to be said, however, in his favor: he was present at some of the engagements in the New Zealand war, though in a civil capacity, and therefore he knows what the smell of powder is when exploded by a hostile rifle. This may perhaps tend to reconcile the haughty military pride of our warriors, and may cause them to accept, it may be somewhat ungraciously, the putting of a mere civilian in charge of so technical a department. But His Excellency has never met the foe in the tented field. We are well aware that in England such a position has been held by a civilian, but then the English are not a military nation; on the Continent of Europe they are frequently alluded to as a nation of shopkeepers. If we look at such military nations as Germany, France and Russia, we will find that they invariably have a General of standing and experience at the head of the War Department. An undoubted slight has been put upon Hawaiian Generals by ignoring their great claims, and placing this civilian in charge. We can only hope that His Excellency, Robt. J. Creighton's inborn modesty will prevent him from thwarting the designs of the warriors aforesaid. It would be too outrageous if some Saturday night, when wages had been paid, and every man had his purse full, an order were to come from this civilian Secretary, calling for the troops to repel the invasion of the blood-thirsty and dangerous Kolea near Koko Head, when every gallant officer and man was prepared to meet tiger, aye and fight him too, at the rendezvous of the Quartermaster-General on King street. This must not be; it is wrong. Before the Legislature adjourn this matter should be regulated. One of our Generals should be Secretary of the Military and Navy. Experience is required for the position and none but they possess it.

The most iniquitous bill that has yet passed the House was run through on the first session yesterday. The bill is the long looked for Opium Bill. In spite of so called ministerial protests from the Attorney General, and in spite of the vote of the Minister of the Interior, this precious bill was not indefinitely postponed. The question comes before the country. "What are you going to do about it? Are you going to allow a venal majority to vote an infamous bill which will drag Hawaii down lower than even the meanest race of Asia?"

If we look at practical matters, how ruinous will such a bill be as regards Japanese immigration? In Japan, so great is the horror of the drug, that the punishment for possession is not less than twelve years imprisonment at a penal settlement; having possession in the house or having opium smoking appliances is liable to eight years imprisonment.

We learn that the Japanese Commissioner has seen the self styled Premier twice and has shown him that the Japanese Government would not suffer its subjects to remain under a Government that licensed the free use of opium.

Now we would ask our readers to note this. The Government have a full swing of a majority of the House. Not a man on their side dare breathe, much less vote, contrary to their views. Dare spoke against the bill. Gibson voted against it. Does any one believe that these men voted in good faith? We know that the Government organ will bring forth a tirade on this point, but we boldly affirm it. Gibson voted as he did after ascertaining that the vote would go in favor of the opium license, and his object was to get a few people whom he still succeeds in bamboozling to stick to his side. This is an old trick, but it seems likely to pay in this instance. Between the two stools Gibson ought to fall to the ground. He has privately advocated this iniquitous bill, his son-in-law has voted for it, and he has been able to make his venal majority take the same line. For himself to make an appearance of morality he has "ratted." The only word to fit him for the whole transaction is HYOCRITE.

The vote on the indefinite postponement was as follows: AYES—Gibson, Dare, Bishop, Dominis, Cleghorn, Wilder, Kuhielani, Bush, Kapa, Parker, Kaubi, Brown, Ngih, Kaula, Dickey, Thurston, Dole—17. NOES—Kanaoa, Kaa, Hayselden, Kean, Liliakalani, Baker, Amara, Kaula, Kaulukoni, Pahia, Kaunamano, Nahele, Nahinu, Aholo, Kaukan, Richardson, Kaai, Kauai, Palohau—19.

IN THE LOBBY.

If there's a hole in a' your coats I rede ye tent it.
A chief's amang ye takin' notes And faith he'll prent it.
I have heard a lot of talk about Thurston and his 33 1/3 per cent. The Advertiser got off a lot of cheap wit on him, but the Advertiser is wrong. Taxation here has been 75c. on the dollar. Raise that taxation to one dollar and you have added 25c. to your taxation. Now, if 25c. additional on 75c. is not a rise of 33 1/3 per cent. I am ready to eat the man that says so. The thing is as plain as the nose on your face. A school boy will tell you that. Thurston is right and the Government apologist utterly wrong.

I only called to mind the other day that Dare used to be employed by the Golden Rule Bazaar people in San Francisco. Yes, yes! Eugene Davis wrote me about him. Poor Dare, they did not think much of him as a lawyer, as at that time he knew no law. "He must have developed considerably since," says Davis, "he was a very hulk with us and we had to give him the shake."

The Chinamen seem to have got the measure of John Dare and friend Paul. One of them told me the other day: "Dare, he beep talkes foolish, Neumann be smart man, always beat Attorney-General" and from the public papers it is rather fancy he does. Dare has lost more than one good case.

I have not had an opportunity to see the Brigade Major since his appointment as Intelligence Officer. When the Legislature passed the bill they did not know what an Intelligence Officer was. I rather fancy the Brigade Major don't know himself, beyond the fact that it is so much a month in his pocket.

Jinks suggests that perhaps an Intelligence Officer was a walking encyclopedia. Bumps told me he thought that he must have something to do with him, but he cannot find any one in town who knows what the duties really are.

I began to think it was an easy billet, but it just flashed across me that it would not be so easy supposing the Brigade Major has to find "intelligence" for the rest of the army. I guess that would be a pretty tough job and don't envy him his billet in spite of the "so much" a month.

I notice that there is very little said about Ocean Island. When is the Governor going to be appointed. Talking of Ocean Island, where are Strong's pictures of that appanage of the Hawaiian Kingdom. I should think Hawaiians would like to see the lovely spot that has been annexed.

By the way, I wonder what pig it was that smelt out the Island, 1200 miles away. The animal must have had a powerful organ of smell, I should like to get one of these 1200 mile pigs before I return to the States. Guess Barnum would pay me handsome for one.

The members are beginning to look lean and thin. I don't like hanging round much now for I get struck for an occasional dollar, in fact, I find a quarter don't come amies to some of my old friends. It is time the session was over. I want to pack my trunk and be off. I guess I can say good bye next week.

A Collector Skips.

On Monday, Oct. 2nd, C. K. Miller, a collector and general business agent, suddenly skipped in the British ship Amara, sailing for Portland, O. It seems that Miller was indebted to several parties for moneys collected on their account. He was hard pushed by one of his creditors, who demanded his money by 4 o'clock that day, and Miller being unable to arrange for this amount, concluded to take out a passport, by the Amara, and reached the vessel a short time before she cast off from the wharf. It was not generally known until late in the evening that Miller had decamped. There are a number here who will, in a pecuniary point of view, remember the "gay and festive" Chris. Miller. He leaves a young wife and infant here to bear the brunt of his folly.

The Mikado.

The ladies of the Second Congregation of the St. Andrews Episcopal church intend to give a tea party at the Y. M. C. A. Hall on Thursday next. This will be one of the most striking and novel entertainments yet given in Honolulu. The evening will commence with a selection of songs, in costume, from Gilbert and Sullivan's world renowned operas. The ice cream, sponge cake and cheese, a Japanese dish, will follow. The waitresses are to be robed in the costume of the Eastern Isle. Many of the costumes have been kindly lent by Japanese ladies resident here and our public don't have an opportunity of seeing Japanese embroidery and other ensembles, such as are rarely given in any city. Contributions towards the festival will be gladly received by the committee. Mrs. Jordan, Miss Von Holt and Mrs. A. T. Atkinson. The entertainment will commence at 7:30 p. m. Admission for adults, 50 cents; children, 25 cents.

As titles are now all the rage, each person eyes his neighbor to ascertain if he has the traditional insignia attached to his coat. Our devil, who is a shrewd fellow, says he noticed several of the "Sirs" knocking round loose like common folk, and also a few Dukes—notably the Duke of Hawaii and the Duke of Waikapa, several of whom were on the wharf Sunday to witness the flag raising on the Australia. Sir William was also present.
